Environmental Policy

LCP's mission is the economic exploration, conservation, and development of the Lisbon Cruise Terminal. This activity holds particular significance in the Lisbon region, as it positions the port as the main gateway for tourism in the city, carrying economic impact and international projection. The responsibility of LCP is further emphasized in the successful pursuit of this mission in the initial phase, where it will conduct embarkation, disembarkation, and transit activities exclusively within the municipality of Lisbon.

LCP is committed to providing excellent service to cruise ships and their passengers during their visit to the Port of Lisbon. This commitment is based on a continuous improvement of environmental performance, specifically adhering to the following principles:

- Complying with legal requirements and other applicable regulations governing LCP activities;
- Ensuring that suppliers, contractors, and clients comply with applicable legal requirements and other regulations established in port rules; • Preventing pollution and minimizing significant environmental impacts associated with LCP activities;
- Encouraging the Port Community within LCP to constantly improve its environmental performance in all its activities, products, and services;
- Establishing and periodically reviewing objectives and goals, taking into account new significant environmental aspects that may arise during different phases of LCP development;
- Promoting the personal and professional development of employees, ensuring their commitment to the environmental management of the company;
- Facilitating clear, effective, and ongoing internal and external communication on procedures and environmental conduct to be adopted by all parties involved in LCP.
